

-- CARLOUGH, CARLOCK --

The family groups represented in this collection may not be complete, because information was entered bit by bit as I found it or happened upon it; I have not done any systematic research on these families. Because they do not compose whole family genealogies, these listings are arranged differently from most genealogical records or histories. Each listing is a family group, and is arranged and filed alphabetically under the name of the head of the family.

Names are generally in alphabetical order (disregarding spelling variations and middle names), then in approx. chronological order. The first sorting is by surname (mixing together any and all spelling variations), then by given name, then by approximate birthdate (when known) in approximate chronological order. For easier reference, surnames in headings are grouped together under the most common spelling usage that evolved in this geographical location, regardless of individualistic spellings in the records themselves. Cross references are used in most cases where surname spellings substantially vary.

Within the quoted records, the individual spellings have been (mostly) retained because they sometimes provide clues (although in general—but with exceptions—they seem to largely reflect the record keeper's particular orthography and not always, at this early period, any special family preference). Those interested can see the variety and evolution of a particular name's spelling and the interesting and sometimes amusing attempts at phonetic reproduction. Keep in mind that before names and spellings were standardized, records reflected the individualistic whim of the particular recorder (often two different spellings of the same name within the same document). In addition, all records were handwritten, and sometimes deciphering a handwritten name in early records can be quite challenging! So expect to search under all possibilities of spelling (for both surnames and given names).

Given names are grouped together without regard for middle initials or middle names. Because middle names and/or initials are sometimes used, sometimes not used in various records, it seemed simplest to arrange entries as if the middle names or initials did not exist. Usually all variations of a given name are grouped together as though spelled one way: Jan, Johannes, John, etc. are all grouped as one (but also look under the other forms).

Sources and references are included with each "family" grouping, but may or may not include sources that are cited (or are obvious, such as baptismal records, etc.) within the narrative or listing itself.

As with any compiled genealogical record, researchers should regard this information as leads and clues, and should verify all data with independent research.

I welcome, and would be grateful for, any additions or corrections, especially with source citations.

(?poss? wid/div of -?- Apgar)

Clinton D. Carlough ran the fruit orchard begun and developed by his grandfather, James David Carlough (the first mayor of Upper Saddle River), then continued by his father, David James Carlough. Apples and peaches were grown in the orchards and the fruit was known as The Saddle River Brand.

Soon after he took over the farms (by then there were seven tracts, including the 48-acre home farm), it became impossible to employ West Indian apple pickers, and Carlough began selling off the outlying farms and acquiring acreage adjacent to the home farm. By 1963, after acquiring additional adjoining acreage, Clinton D. Carlough began to build his Apple Ridge Country Club on the 120-acre Carlough apple orchard property. He hired renowned golf course architect Hal Purdy, and in April 1966 the Apple Ridge Country Club opened for play (followed in a few months by the opening of the clubhouse).

Clinton D. Carlough and his wife, Grace, in 1988 donated the Hopper-Goetschius House (last lived in by his aunt, Lizzie May Carlough Goetschius) to the Borough of Upper Saddle River. Today it is run as a museum by the Upper Saddle River Historical Society.

David Carlough built the home which still stands today on Lake Street opposite the Carlough Road intersection, bordering today's Apple Ridge Country Club.

He and his friend, Bill Ramsey, were dealers in cattle and sheep. They would go to western New Jersey and drive the cattle on foot back to Upper Saddle River to the property along Carlough Road that David Carlough had purchased from a Mr. Parleman, after Parleman had timber from the land and had no further use for it. Some pasture and grain was grown on the land to feed the animals. When the stock was considered to be in good enough condition and the market was right, the live-stock was driven to Jersey City to be slaughtered.¹

They were listed in the 1850 Federal Census, Bergen Co., Hohokus Twp., Dwelling #459, Family #503. He was listed as a farmer, with real estate valued at $1,000.

David J. Carlough, 67, Farmer, and Maria Carlough, 63, his wife, were listed in the 1880 Federal Census, living in Hohokus Township, Bergen County, NJ. Living with them was their son, John, 27, and his wife, Anna, 21.

David Carlough, 97, widower, was listed in the 1900 Federal Census, living in Upper Saddle River Borough with his son John G. Carlough and his family.
