

-- DEVOE --

The family groups represented in this collection may not be complete, because information was entered bit by bit as I found it or happened upon it; I have not done any systematic research on these families. Because they do not compose whole family genealogies, these listings are arranged differently from most genealogical records or histories. Each listing is a family group, and is arranged and filed alphabetically under the name of the head of the family.

Names are generally in alphabetical order (disregarding spelling variations and middle names), then in approx. chronological order. The first sorting is by surname (mixing together any and all spelling variations), then by given name, then by approximate birthdate (when known) in approximate chronological order. For easier reference, surnames in headings are grouped together under the most common spelling usage that evolved in this geographical location, regardless of individualistic spellings in the records themselves. Cross references are used in most cases where surname spellings substantially vary.

Within the quoted records, the individual spellings have been (mostly) retained because they sometimes provide clues (although in general—but with exceptions—they seem to largely reflect the record keeper's particular orthography and not always, at this early period, any special family preference). Those interested can see the variety and evolvement of a particular name's spelling and the interesting and sometimes amusing attempts at phonetic reproduction. Keep in mind that before names and spellings were standardized, records reflected the individualistic whim of the particular recorder (often two different spellings of the same name within the same document). In addition, all records were handwritten, and sometimes deciphering a handwritten name in early records can be quite challenging! So expect to search under all possibilities of spelling (for both surnames and given names).

Given names are grouped together without regard for middle initials or middle names. Because middle names and/or initials are sometimes used, sometimes not used in various records, it seemed simplest to arrange entries as if the middle names or initials did not exist. Usually all variations of a given name are grouped together as though spelled one way: Jan, Johannes, John, etc. are all grouped as one (but also look under the other forms).

Sources and references are included with each "family" grouping, but may or may not include sources that are cited (or are obvious, such as baptismal records, etc.) within the narrative or listing itself.

As with any compiled genealogical record, researchers should regard this information as leads and clues, and should verify all data with independent research.

I welcome, and would be grateful for, any additions or corrections, especially with source citations.

He grew up in Morrisania and became a farmer by assisting to cultivate the many acres which his father had become possessed of both by purchase and by his wife. In 1718 his father purchased some 200 acres of land in New Rochelle from his daughter Leah, widow of Peter Gendron, and an additional farm of 100 acres was purchased there the next year by his father, on which his son removed and became a prominent citizen of that place.

At an election for town officers of New Rochelle in 1723 he was chosen Collector, and his name appears written in the records as Abel Devereux. The next year residing next to his brother-in-law, Andrew Naudain, both of whom granted a piece of land to Anthony Lisenard for the extension of the latter's mill-pond.

In 1728 his father conveyed the farm of 200 acres to his son Abel, and after the deed was recorded he changed his mind, and on the same day it was reconveyed back to his father, and he then signs the conveyance Abel dau. Abel continued to cultivate the land and to pay the taxes until after his father's death, when the following tax receipt was brought forth to be settled by the executors: "March ye 27th, 1744.--Received of ye Executors of ye Easteat of Ffreadrick Devofe, Decead, Eleven Shillings, it Being for two several Taxes pd the Colectr for my ffather's land at New Rochel. Witness my hand, "Abel de Vaux."

Abel Devaux in 1738 was chosen Overseer of the Highway, and in the years 1747-48 and '49 he was one of the Assessors with Peter Bertine. In the meantime his father died (1742), bequeathing to Abel the farm of 100 acres, after paying certain moneys to his brother Joseph and to his grandson, John Devoose, who was Abel's second son.

In his will he bequeaths his property to his children, but his slaves are divided: To his son, Abel, Jr., "one negro wench Kate"; to Frederick he leaves Harry; to Andrew the boy Isaac; and to his daughter, Magdalena, the wench Jane. In his will, he wrote: ...April 22, 1774. I, Abel DeVow, of New Rochelle, in Westchester County, yeoman, being sick. "I leave to my son Abel, a negro wench and her increase." To my son Frederick, a negro man. To my son Andrew, a negro boy. I leave to my daughter Magdalena, wife of Jeremiah Schurman, £150. I leave to my wife Magdalena all the rest of movable estate. I make my sons, Abel and Frederick, executors. Witnesses, Gilbert Bloomer, Hezekiah Seaman, Israel Secord. Proved, July 29, 1774.

In the old family Bible (printed in French), by Jean Diodati, Imprimier Aggrieve, 1644, his children's births (or baptisms) are recorded and witnessed by persons present.

He afterwards became possessed of land left by his father, which was much increased by him. In 1755 he was chosen one of the Assessors, and continued several years, and in 1764 he was elected a Constable, but refused to serve, and was obliged to pay a fine for so refusing. In 1767 he was chosen one of the Overseers of the "Upper Quarter Highway," where he served for two years; he then resided in that part of the town, his farm laying some two or three miles on the easterly side of the North Road leading to White Plains, taking in the highest elevation in that region.

In his will, dated 3 May 1775 Abel Devoue, of New Rochelle, yeoman, wrote: "My Body is to be buried in a Christian like and decent manner, in the burying ground that I have reserved for a burying place for my family, for any of the Devoues, of my relations, and the free liberty of a road from the highway to said burying place, being 30 feet north and south, and 28 feet east and west." I leave to my wife Mary the use of all my estate. After her decease, I leave to my son Benjamin 60 acres of land in the front joining to the road, and extending from said road eastward. I leave to my wife a horse and chair. The rest of my land joining to my brother, Fredrick Devoue, is to be sold by my executors, with the movables, at public vendue. My wife may sell my negro man "Prime" when she pleases. I leave to my son Daniel £5, and my big gun. To my grandchild, Tamor Barker, £20. I leave all the rest, "with what my wife expects from her father," to all my children, Daniel, Abel, and my daughters, Mary Landrine, Esther Devoue, and Susanah Devoue. I leave to my son Abel 40 shillings, "soon after my decease." I make my wife Mary, and my sons, Daniel and Abel, executors. Witnesses, Gilead Hunt, Abigail Ward, Peter Bennet. Proved, August 12, 1775.

Deveau Town, a small scattered hamlet in this vicimty, was named after Abel Deveau, an old Whig of the Revolution, and proprietor of a small estate. He was fond of relating how he and others were deployed as skirmishers to waylay the British near the causeway after their landing on Pelham Neck in 1776, firing from behind the rocks near Rapelye's and retiring as they advanced towards East Chester." Abel De Veau was by trade a weaver; in 1791 a Constable, besides being a Collector for some five years, when he was chosen a Road-master, changed in 1804 to one of the "Overseers of Highway." In 1812 he conveyed some three acres and five perches of land to Elbert Roosvelt, and he signed his name Able Devous. The next year he disposes of another piece of land on the road leading to Pelham, adjoining the land of Elijah Davoue and adjoining the land of Elbert Roosvelt, containing half an acre, to Elias Davoue. Then in 1827 Abel Devoue, Sen., disposes "of about two acres of land to Robert Devoue, adjoining to the land now or late belonging to Elias Devoue." Abel had children: James, Elizabeth, Anna, Joseph, Elijah, Hannah (b. 1787, died 1874; unmarried), Coles, Elias, Mary (b. 1796), Sarah (b. 1797, died 1839), Abel, and Robert.

Griffin says "the De Vaux Genealogy gives Mynno as a Demarest, but she is variously recorded as Germina, Hermina, Weyne and Myno "Jurckse," [and] the sponsor connections prove she was related to the family of Jurck Paulus or Paulus Jurckse..."

The French Church in Manneheim, Germany, where many French Huguenots had fled, recorded his baptism (bap. #1025) - "Nicholas de Vaux, and Marie Sy habitant of this city have had Baptized their son Abraham the 14th June born the 11th ditto [June] 1668, and has had for Godfather Philippe Mane, young man and for godmother Marie Petillon young woman." (Record 128:51). No entries for Nicholas or his wife were found in the Manneheim Church Records after 1673 (ibid). It is believed that Nicholas, Marie and their son Abraham immigrated to New York in 1674. Nicholas served with David Demarest Sr. in the Harlem Night Watch in 1675 and assisted in cutting 5,000 trees for the Wall Street Palisade (Riker p.345-346). In 1677, Nicholas De Vaux moved with the Demarests and other French immigrants to NJ where they formed a French Colony in present day New Milford, Brg. Co. From 1682-1696 the French Colony worshiped in the "French Church of Kinderkamack," whose records have not survived (per Demarest Narrative). It is possibly where they were married and had their first children bap. On 22 Sep 1694, "Abraham De Vouw, Hendrick Hoppe and Gerret Van Dien," Willem's brother and half-brother, all joined the Hackensack Ref Ch.

On 24 Nov 1700, "Abraham de Voe and Germina Jückes s.h.vrou (his wife)," witnessed the bap. of Johannis, child of Johannis Jürkese and Annatje Jochems, at the NYC Ref Ch (p.271). According to Mackenzie, "They resided in Hackensack until about 1700 when they moved to Staten Island. They settled in Tarrytown about 1703 and lived on Broadway just north of Shelden Brook." The See family had also settled there, as did two of her Hopper daus. and their husbands.

On an "Early Membership List" of the Tarrytown Ref Ch were Abraham de Voe and Meero his wife (mem.#54 and #55), as well as her daus. Geertje, wife of Peter Buys (mem.#56) and Beelitje, wife of Jacob Van Weert, (mem.#58) and gr.dau. Catharina Buys and her husb. Jan Van Texel (mem.#52 and 53). Abraham was a Deacon of the Tarrytown Ref Ch, 1708-10 (p.18) and an Elder 1724-26 (p.19).

Abraham de Voe and Myno Jurckxe his wife, wit. the bap. 1 Aug 1721, at Tappan Ref Ch.(bap.#377) of Johannis son of Paulus Jorckxe and Theuntje Crom.

"Abraham de Vouw and Mynno his wife," last appeared in Tarrytown Ref Ch records on 27 Oct 1733, when they wit. the bap. of Thomas son of Thomas Vibart and Maritie his wife (bap.#791). They also both mentioned they lived in Staten Island 1701-1705 (Demarest), though they do not appear in church records there. They moved to Harlem, where he worked as a carpenter until 1762, when he moved on a small farm he had purchased, of some 50 acres just below Fort Washington on, New York Island, bounded on the North River and the Bloomingdale Road, and about the same period he was elected a constable of the Harlem division. The farm cost about 40 pounds, of which a portion was loaned to him by his brother, John Devoe, who had previously settled at Bushwick, L. I., with the agreement: "Know all men by these Presents that I, Abraham Devoe, of Harlem, in the County of New York, are held and firmly bound unto John Devoe, of Bushwick, in Kings Countey, in the sum of Sixtey Pound, Current Money of the Province of New York, to be Paid to the said John Devoe, or to his certain Attorney, Executors, Administrators, or Assigns, to witch Payment well and truly to be maid--I do bind my Self, my heirs, Executors, and Administrators, and every of them firmley by these Presents, Sealed with my Seal, dated the first day of May, in the Year of our Lord One thousand Seven Hundred and Sixty two..."

As his water right extended to and in the North River he engaged in shad and other fishing when in season, as his old account-book and papers show. In these accounts, commencing in 1764, appears, "Peter Tetar, Depter to Abraham Devoe" (also found written Deuoue, Devoue, Deuore) for carpenter's work. John Maansel for "1 day at a swingate, 6s." "to one half a bushel of Petatoes, 1s. 3d." "Aron Myer, Depter, for 16 pound of tobackco, 8s.; To mending a stove, 6d.; mending a waggon, 4s. 6d.; To making a coffen, 7s.; To 50 shadd, 8s." With "Henery Jacobs" "he worked 54 day--æ14 15s. 6d." In 1770 he charged "John Ryer, the Sonn (son) of tunes Ryer, 1s. for 2 pound of tobackco"; and soon after "15 pound of tobackco, 5s." Then follows "4 pound tobackco, 2s. and 7 Bushshels of Turneps, 10s. 6d." On another page the name of "Roger Morres at Harlem (known since as Madm Jumel's), Depter to Abraham Devoue for worcking 4 Days and a half, æ1 7s.; to macking of one ox-yoack, 5s.; 83 shad, 14s.; To a Bass and one shad, 1s. 9d.; To showing [shoeing] of a Slead, 5s.; mending a drag, 1s. 6d.; To the Macking of eight ox-bows, 8s." In 1775 he charges Jeme Van Cortland "for macking of four spools and one flyer (for a weaving machine), 4s." Previous to several of these last charges property had advanced in prices, and he offered his farm for sale through the press, which is thus set forth in the New York Gazette and Mercury, July 16, 1770: "To be sold.--A small, convenient farm, pleasantly situated on the Post Road eleven miles from the city of New York; bounded westerly by Hudson's River, where is good landing and extraordinary fishing place. Oysters are caught here in great plenty. The farm contains about 50 acres; the whole is well watered by living fountains and pretty well wooded. There is on the premises a very good dwelling-house, stable and two barracks, a small bearing orchard, and about 150 young appletrees of the best fruit beginning to bear, with a variety of other fruit. There is a few acres of very good mowing ground, and the whole is very natural to grass and produces all kinds of grain. Whoever inclines to purchase the same may apply to Abraham Devoe on the premises, who will agree on reasonable terms and give an indisputable title for the same." The property was apparently not then sold, as we again find it advertised at public vendue (but differently described) on the 28th of October, 1771: "To be sold on the premises the 23d of November next.--A farm situate on the road to New York, adjoining the road, on which is a very good dwelling-house, with two rooms on a floor and a fire-place in each room, with a cellar under it. Also an out-house or stable 14 by 21, with a good cellar and two barracks. The land contains about 35 acres of arable land, with five acres of excellent meadow ground and an orchard of about 300 fruit-trees, forming nearly a square from the road down to the Hudson's River. It is well water'd with fine spring, and finely situated for fishing, fowling, &c., with an extensive common before it for the range of cattle, &c., and firewood that will serve about 18 years. If any person should be inclined to treat for it by private sale apply to Mr. Devoe on the premises, by whom an indisputable title will be given. Abraham Devoue."

He disposed of his farm, and soon after moved to the city of New York, where he found plenty of work both at his trade and on the shipping vessels; but the exciting times on the opening of the Revolution began to affect his business--in fact, all sorts of mechanical trades were at a standstill, without any hope of improvement very soon--so he concluded to try farming again in addition to his trade, and moved out into Bergen County, N. J., near a place called "Tea Neck," where he lived a short period; but not liking the place, and finding a small farm near Schraalenbergh and the New Bridge, purchased it.

He joined the American Army in a company under Capt. Demarest, where he shortly after became an under officer. His property was raided by Tory thieves several times, and there are accounts of the bravery of Mrs. DeVoe in standing up to the raiders. After peace was declared Abraham Devoe returned to work on his small farm and to his trade of carpentry. Among his papers appeared a bill made out in 1799 for 119 days' work on the "Scaullenburgh Church" at 10s. per day.

In early life Abraham was unfortunate in having one of his legs broken near the thigh, which rendered him lame for life; he was, however, able to do some kinds of farm work until quite an old man.

During the Revolution he and his wife became well acquainted with General Washington, who usually stopped at his house when passing that way; in fact Washington knew all the friendly families between the lines, through his "Life Guards," several of which, previous to the war, were residents of Westchester County.

In his will, dated 19 Jan 1805, probated 23 Oct 1805, Abraham Devow, of Mt. Pleasant, devised use of estate to wife Mary and after her decease to sons John and Jacob; mentioned son Abraham; g. ch., ch. of dau. He was apprenticed with a carpenter, and, after serving out his time in the city of New York, he was employed in 1757 by Col. James Montrossor to work for the Government, then at war with the French and Indians. On "Saturday, 13th. [August 1757] -- Aaron Devoe, Carpenter, came in last night from Fort Wm. Henry. His certificate from Mr. Gordon is for 56 days at 7 shillings per day, 17 days sick, and he worked at Fort Wm. Henry 16 days. His whole pay amounts to £28 3s. 6d."

In 1769, he was made a Freeman. In 1787 he advertised a lost pocketbook, which he found at Leak's Dock. Two years after he is paid a bill of £11 3s. 4d. by the city for repairing the Corporation Dock. He was then living on Broadway below Trinity Church in a house which he owned, but which he sold about 1800 to James Arden for £750, and the next year he farming in Bergen County, N. J.

In his will he left his wife, Maria, "20 acres of Cedar Swamp and 3 square meadows on the west side of the Turnpike road leading from Hackensack to Hoboken in the Bergen Woods, also the Homestead adjoining the road leading to Bull's Ferry with 60 acres, near the Bull's Ferry," and to his grandson, Aaron, he leaves £300.

He was placed at the cooper's trade. In 1788 he appeared in the Great Federal Procession in New York City, being selected one of the "13 apprentices of 13 years old," which was intended to represent the thirteen States.

He was in business for himself by 1788, at which time he advertised a run-away apprentice. In 1805 his residence was at No. 112 Lombardy Street and his workshop quite near the ship-yards near Cherry Street, where in 1808 he offers "One hundred dollars reward. Wilful Fire.--The Cooper shop belonging to 610 Mr. Charles Devoe, in Cherry Street, was wilfully set on Fire by some incendiary; shingles dipt in tar were placed under the ground floor, through which, although the flames had already communicated and making rapid progress towards the roof, yet by the timely exertions of a few citizens in the neighborhood a calamity was providentially averted which would have produced great destruction. The above reward of 100 dollars will be paid for such information as will lead to the conviction of the offender by--Charles Devoe." The Common Council of the city also offered a reward of $200 for the same purpose, on which they reported in the same month without success.

He lived at New Rochelle, near his Uncle Abel, with prospects of increased business in his trade as a weaver. He was here but a few years when he was chosen one of the Overseers of the Highway, which took place in 1753, and again to the same office in 1758. Having inherited some property in Morrisania, and wishing to occupy it, he returned to that place and became engaged both in farming and weaving. He sold his property to his brother, John Devoe, who on the 8th of December, 1776, gave him "the sum of Thirty eight pounds, fifteen shillings, in full of all demands," He left that part of the country and brought up in Rockland County, New York, where he advertised: "Strayed or stolen from the subscriber at the camp in Smith's Clove, from the pasture of Mr. Cornelius Devoe's, on Saturday night, the 19th (of June, 1779) ult., a Black mare--Forty dollars reward, by John Gray, Booneton, Morris Co., N. Daniel De Veaux, a young brother of Frederick, emigrated with his elder brother, Nicholas, and arrived in New York in 1674. Frederick and Daniel each had twins (a boy and a girl). The twins were b. 30 years apart, and both sets were given the same first names.

Daniel followed Nicholas and moved to New Jersey for a time, but later moved north to Rhinebeck, NY.

In the (1) marriage record they were: Daniel Vooren, j.m. op de Manhatans, en Anna Frans, Wedr. Cornelis Arienszen, beyde woonende op Tappan. Getrouwt op Hackingzack.

In the (2) marriage record they were: "Daniel De Voor (widower) and Engeltje Cornelis, with letters from the French Church at Kinkackgemeck, Bergen County. Were married by R. Van Giesen, Voorlezer."

Cornelis Jansen [Kortright], in his will dated 25 Feb 1689, probated 18 March 1706, directed: Daniel Devoor is to have a cow for his daughter, Meettie Daniels, when she is of age.

In his will, written on 7 September 1724 and proved 15 May 1729, Daniel Devore, yeoman, of Amwell Township, Hunterdon County, NJ mentions his wife "Angleca" as the sole heiress and executrix. She was charged with bringing up the children (not named), and she was to be assisted by Adrian Lane and William Roosa. Witnesses--Peter Hinne Gisbert, Arom Gerret van Vlit, John Reading. In their marriage record, they were: Daniel de Voe, j.m. V. Westchester, met Margritje Coljers, j.d. (With banns 6 Aug at New Haarlem and the Manor of Fordham).

In early life worked for his father in farming until 1728, when his father transferred the farm, which he had purchased from William Bickley in 1694, to him. This document read as follows: "For the sum of £35, paid to me by my son Daniel Devoe, of ye Borrough Town of Westchester, all yt my one hundred & eighty-four & a half acres of land, situated and being in Westchester--was laid out by William Bickley, ye tenth day of August, 1685--beginning at a spring of Water south of Crabb Island, at ye south-east corner of the Manor of Fordham; it runs thence east forty chains to a small Run of Water, thence by said Run of Water to a Creek to Harlem River." The lower part or point of land, known as "De Voe's Point" for more than one hundred years, was a portion of the above farm, and was owned and held by the family, passing down from generation to generation, until a few acres of the Point was sold to Robert MacComb in 1814, on which he erected a bridge and dam across Harlem River to Bussing's Point, on the other or New York Island side. The dam was built with heavy gates on the upper side, which shut at high water and inclosed a large body of water for the use of a tide grist-mill at King's Bridge. This farm was taxed by the State a "Quit Rent,"(*) which was paid every two years until his death, in 1772, the form of which read: "Received of Danl. De Voor two bushels Wheat in full for two years Quit Rent of a Neck of Land in Westchester County, granted to William Brickley 13th May, 1685, being to the 25th March last. "New York, 14th May, 1769. "John Moore, Dep. Recr. Genl." (*)The law of "Quit Rents" was in force until the year 1824, as we find two years before that period the State Comptroller notified all persons owning lands charged with "Quit Rent" that this law would expire on the 1st of January, 1824, after which arrears due on land would be subject to be sold.

In his will dated 27 Oct 1773, probated 8 Nov 1774, Daniel De Voo, of the Borrough town of Westchester, yeoman, being sick, mentioned eldest son Daniel; son Levi; son John (all real estate, etc., leather in my tan vats; my share in the Periauger); Mary De Voo, wife of my son Johannes [named separately from son John]; daughter Margaret Mapes (to have a room in my house while unmarried); granddaughter Margaret Mapes; Rev. Mr. Shoemaker (my large Psalm Book); sons Daniel, Cornelius, Levi, and John; daus Magdalene Odell, Mary Vanderburgh, and Abigail Odell; two granddaughters, Margaret Rudde and Margaret Mapes. His wife was Sarah Mapes, of Fordham, through whom he acquired a farm on Fordham Manor, described as "running eastward by the land of Richard Morris, northerly by the land of Benjamin Archer and Jacob Lent, south by the land of Richard Morris; containing 40 acres, more or less."

At an early date he wrote his name De Voo and Devoo, and for several years when recording his vote he was known as Daniel Devoe the third.

In his will he bequeaths, to his eldest son David--"shall have three pounds; my son Levi Devoo, the sum of 20 shillings; son John De Voo, my real estate, a negro lad named Tom, two of my best horses, one cow, grain, leather in the tanpits; as to my two old negroes, Windsor and Jean shall not be sold. Newspaper notice: "On Sunday, the 3d inst. (April, 1743), during the time of divine service, the dwelling house of Daniel Devou, Jr., near Morrisania, was burnt down with all the furniture therein. The people were all gone out, and the fire was not discovered till the whole house was in Flames. 'Twas supposed to have been occasioned by a brand's end tumbling out of the fire-place on the floor."

Daniel was a weaver by trade and also gave a portion of his time to farming, having inherited from his father one-half of the "Bickley Farm"; with these resources the waters of the Harlem River, which almost surrounded his land, also furnished not only his own family but many others in the neighborhood with fine sea-fish, oysters, clams, as well as several kinds of wild-fowl in abundance. In a running account of eight years (from 1739 to 1747) between his brother-in-law, Abraham Martling, Jr., who was by trade a blacksmith, and himself (or rather it is found written Daniel Dye Vou, Jr., weaver), for weaving wool, coarse linen, some 447 ells, amounted to £11 3s. 6d.

Daniel died in 1777, but in consequence of the Revolution the will was not recorded until 1781, leaving an income to his wife. His part of the Bickley farm he divided between his sons Peter and Isaac, and the land which he had purchased from Lewis Morris he orders to be sold for the benefit of his five daughters then living. Hester had died, as well as his sons Daniel and Abraham, previous to the making of his will. While Daniel's father was living and his son Daniel had become old enough to entitle him to vote, the records appear when recording their votes in 1770-2 and '73; the father is marked Senior, his son Junior, and the grandson the Third; after the father's death the son became Senior and the grandson Junior.

He was a weaver. He moved some four miles north to Lower Yonkers on the Mile Square Road, where he leased a farm from Col. Frederick Philips. In 1756 he was chosen by the town of Yonkers and Mile Square one of the Highway Masters and Fence and Damage Viewers. At this early period there were three brothers residing on farms leased from Col. Philips adjoining each other--Daniel's was the lowest down or southernmost; then came Frederick's, a good half of a mile north (who was a half brother); and about the same distance north of Frederick's was the younger brother, Thomas, who removed farther north to Somers Town soon after 1760.

On the breaking out of the Revolution Daniel became enrolled in one of the companies, but being a man of delicate health he evaded the duty by leaving his home, and remained with his friends in the neighborhood. His property was plundered by both Cow Boys and Skinners; the former, while robbing him, called him a damn'd rebel, and the latter threatened to shoot him as a refugee if he made the least resistance.

At the beginning of the Revolution with his brothers John and Peter, and other patriotic young men belonging to the Manor of Fordham and West Farms, he petitioned to the Continental Congress asking for the privilege to have a separate company and to elect their officers from those who lived in this beat. The records show that on the 21st of October, 1775, Daniel De Voe, Jr., was elected Second-Lieutenant in the West Farms and Fordham Company, and both brothers John and Peter were also found in its ranks. Daniel, Jr., was commissioned on the 31st of October, 1775, and was either killed or died soon after.

"David Du Four, a native of Mons in Hainault, upon this place being threatened by the successes of the French in the Walloon districts, retired with others of the family to Sedan and afterward to Amsterdam, where Du Four, though fitted by education for a better position, became an "opperman", or drayman. Left by the death of his late wife, Maria Boulen, with a young child, Jean, born during their stay in Sedan, he found another companion in Jeanne Frances, a lady of mature thirty-two years, from Queivrain, a little east of Mons, to whom he was married 19 Jul 1657. That same year, with his new wife and his little son aforesaid, he sailed for the Manhattan Island."<sup>2</sup>

A grant for land from Andros to David Duffore, was dated 9 Oct 1677 (Stokes, Vol. 6, p., 128), and was for land along the East River from approx. present-day 51st St. to 57th St. and stretching inward from the river to about 3rd Ave.

"Davit De Voor and Jan Davitsen" were on a list of persons between the Fresh Water and Harlem, which list was probably made between Aug 9 and Aug 28 of 1673. These two were probably this David DeVoor/DuFour and his son, Jan Davidsen.

In their joint will, in the Dutch language, dated 14 Sep 1671, probated prob. May 1699, David Du Four, from Bergen, Henegau, and wife Jannetje Frans from Guevrerin, near Valencyn, living at Deudelbay, NY. David kept a tavern, somewhat famously known as the "Black Horse Tavern," once located on the Jamaica turnpike, near the present junction of Fulton and De Kalb Avenues, Brooklyn. This place he made prominent as a stopping-place for stage-coaches, farmers, and travellers from about 1790 to 1830. He owned quite a plot of ground purchased of the De Bevoice family.

(banns 3 June 1677
NYC Ref Ch)

He moved to Manheim, Germany with his parents when he was about 12 years old, and lived there until 1675, when he came to America and settled at Harlem, NY. He was the brother of Nicholas de Vaux/de Voe.

In the NYC Ref Ch (2) record of their banns and marriage they were: Frederick de Vou, Wedr. Uyt Walslant, en Hester Tourneurs, j.d. Van N. Haerlem.

Through his second wife, he came into possession of a tract of land, known afterwards as the "Cromwell Farm," located on the eastern shore of the cove into which "Cromwell Creek" connects with the Harlem River, near the "Central Bridge."

In 1694 Frederick purchased the neck of land containing 184 acres (afterwards known as "Devoe's Point," which connected McComb's Dam--now Central Bridge) on the east end across the Harlem River, from William Bickley, Senr., who held a patent for it. The land was described on the reverse of a document dated 25 June 1694: Philip Wells, Surveyor, laid out for Wm. Bickley a certain neck of Land joining upon Harlem River, beginning at a certain Spring or Run of Water to the South of Crabb Island, which is the South east Corner of the land of John Archer's, so round by the Run to a Creek to the land of Daniel Turneir, so round by ??to Harlem River, then by the Harlem River to a Creek bounded north by the land of John Archer, to the east by a run of water, the west bound of Daniel Turneir; Containing 184 acres, which parcel of Land the said Wm. Bickley sold to Ffredrick Devou" (for the sum of £14).

In 1705 he purchased a tract of land from Col. Lewis Morris, in Morrisania, and in 1715 he took the oath of allegiance; three years after (1718) he purchased 200 acres of land in New Rochelle from his daughter, Leah Gendron, who was left a widow by the death of her husband, Peter Gendron, for which he paid £213 through Andrew Naudain, another son in-law. The next year (1719), Frederick bought the farm adjoining the last purchased in New Rochelle from Susannah Couton, "containing one hundred acres," for which he paid £150, and in the transfer deed his name is written Ffredrick De Vose (long s). In the same year a receipt is found for the payment of one pound at "Mile Square"; he signs his name Fredrick de Voue.

The two farms which Frederick, Sen., had purchased in the years 1718-19, of about 300 acres at New Rochelle, became occupied by his son Abel, where his father soon after moved, having all his children married except his youngest daughter Abigail, who perhaps resided with one of her sisters until her death, which took place before the death of her father, as her name is not noticed in his will.

The introduction of the following receipt, besides being a curiosity, also introduces another change in the spelling of his name: "January ye thirteenth 1724.--Then Received of 405 Frederick De Voo the sum of six shillings and nine pence, which is in full of all accounts, Debts, dues and Demands, together with all Law Sutes, Cost of Law Sutes, which Ever was from ye beginnig of ye world to this Day of ye Date hearof, as witness my hand. Hendrick Slott. Witness: Clement Daniels.

In 1728 "Ffredrick Devoe, of ye Township of New Rochelle, yeoman, for the sum of £35," disposes of his Bickley farm ("De Voe's point") of 184 1/2 acres of land to his son Daniel Devoe, of ye Bourough Town of Westchester. Two years after (1730) he is found boarding with his son-in-law, Andrew Naudain, at New Rochelle, with whom he resided until a few months before his death, which occurred in the month of November, 1743, at the house of his son Daniel, at Morrisania, or town of Westchester.

The inventory of his money, bonds, goods, etc., after his death shows that for that period he was a man of considerable wealth, as also by his will, in which he divides up his property, giving each certain sums of money and other property, and to his grandson, John Devooise, twenty pounds, and his daughter Judith, "Shall have my French Psalm Book," while his "Parcel of old Ffrench Books" are inventoried at "one pound." He appointed his sons Frederick and Daniel Devooise, and his friend Abraham Martling, of Westchester County, as his executors.

In a document from Liber F, p. 126, Land Records of Westchester Co., NY: 13 June 1721, Articles of Agreement between Frederock Devoose, Senr., of the Manor of Fordham, and Frederick Devoose, Junr., son of same. Whereas Frederick Devoose, Senr., is possessed of certain lands and tenants, in which he was invested by his inter-marriage with his wife Esther Devose, daughter of Daniel Turner [lands in Fordham]. The same to his son, Frederick Devoose, Junr., he to pay to each of ye persons hereafter named, ye sum of five pounds. To Rachel Dickman, wife of Johanis Dickman; to Esther Vincent, wife of Levi Vincent; to Susan Nodine, wife of Andrew Nodine; to Mary Browne, wife of Favert Browne; to Leah Bayly, wife of Nathaniel Bayly; to Dinah Guyon, wife of Lewis Guyon; to Judith Barit, wife of Johanis Barit; and to Abigail Devoose, ye daughter of ye sd. Frederick Devoose, Sr.

In a document recorded Liber F, p. 225, Land Records of Westchester Co., NY: 31 July 1728, Frederick Devoe of New Rochelle, yeoman, to son Daniel Devoe of Westchester, yeoman, land in Westchester at the southeast corner of the Manor of Fordham. Ibid, p. 227: 31 July 1728, Frederick Devoe of New Rochelle, to son Abel Devoe of New Rochelle, yeoman, land in New Rochelle.

Frederick DeVoor/DeVoe lived at Yonkers, NY.

In the (2) marriage record, they were: Frederick De Noe, junior, Wedr. V. Westchester, met Maria Odel, j.d., V. Mannor V. Fordham.

In 1721 Frederick's father, Frederick, deeded the farm (afterwards known as the "Cromwell Farm," now located east of the Central Bridge, across the inlet which is now crossed by the Hudson River Railroad) to his son Frederick, which he got by his wife as a marriage portion, and on which his father had resided until the death of his wife took place, when the farm was transferred to his son Frederick, who resided on these premises until his death, which appears was early in the year 1753, when an "Inventory of the personal estate of Frederick De Voee, late of the Manner of Morrisania, Deceased, Taken and appraised this 30 Day of April, 1753, by 2974 Joshua Bishop & 3008 James Collard."

In his will dated 8 Aug 1751, probated 30 April 1753, Frederick Devoe of Morrisania, Westchester County, NY, mentioned wife Mary; eldest son Frederick; dau. Abigail Brown; daus. Hester, Sarah, Mary, and Leah; sons Frederick, Daniel, John, Thomas, and Abraham. Made wife Mary and brother-in-law Andrew Nodine executors. Wit: Joshua Bishop, James

His executors, Daniel De Voove and Andrew Nodine, advertised (in the New York Mercury), August 8, 1757: "To be sold at Public Vendue, on the 5th day of September next, by the executors of Frederick De Voove, deceased, by virtue of his Will, the farm or plantation on which he lived, together with the salt meadows belonging thereto. The sale to begin at ten of the clock in the morning, at the premises, situate within the bounds of the manner of Morrisania." Signed by the executors.

Early in life he came into possession of a very fine farm, which was afterwards increased to above 400 acres through the assistance of his father, who lived on the north adjoining property. In 1764 he was chosen Pound-master, the next year as an Assessor, and he was one of the Overseers of the Road, "Upper Quarter," in 1774. It was also said that he owned property in the city of New York, where he spent his winters previous to the Revolution. His farm-house was of unusual length, said to have been about 70 feet long and the main building above 20 feet wide, built of stone, in which his family resided until about the close of the Revolution.

He and his wife were Presbyterians, who at that period had no church building to worship in; but church meetings were often held in the large rooms of Frederick De Veau's house; Mrs. DeVeau later became the first convert to Methodism in New Rochelle.

He was a Loyalist, and in the month of November, 1780, John Thomas, the Sheriff of the County of Westchester, New York, through the Court of General Sessions of the Peace, advertised a long list of persons, among which is found Frederick Devoe, of New Rochelle, Yeoman, who had been indicted for adhering to the enemies of this State, and to show cause why their estates should not be forfeited.

In 1783, peace having been proclaimed, Frederick Devoe went to St. John's, New Brunswick (afterwards to Annapolis Royal), where as a grantee he was placed in possession of a large landed property. The next year the Commissioners of Forfeiture notified all claimants against forfeited lands of certain persons, dated May 18, 1784, among which appeared the name of Frederick Devoe, whose large farm of about 324 acres they had confiscated, after which the Legislature of New York gave the whole of these premises to Tom Paine for services, which they set forth, he had rendered to the United States.

Frederick Davoue, Sen., was established in business in Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia, in 1785, where his name heads a list of the first Petit Jury in a case of manslaughter.

In the Ladies Weekly Museum account of their marriage, he was of Morrissena, she was late of NYC, m. at Harlem.

The portion of the farm at "De Voe's Point" which he inherited from his father was the lower part, which afterwards connected New York Island by the Dam and Bridge of McComb's. Before that structure was erected the neighboring farmers were obliged to go up to Kingsbridge or a roundabout way to reach the toll-bridge at Harlem. This led the brothers Frederick and Charles De Voe to present a letter to the Common Council, in the month of July, 1812, addressed to Aldr. Nicholas Fish, in which they stated they intended to make application to the Legislature "for permission to erect a Free Bridge from De Voe's Point, in the Town of Westchester, to Bussing's Point, on the New York side, thereby shorten the distance one mile at least than by the Kingsbridge route." This brought forth a great deal of opposition by several parties who wished to have a toll-bridge, and finally in 1814 Frederick and his wife disposed of a part of the "Point" to Robert McComb, which included the small island of rock at the extreme end of De Voe's Point in the Harlem River. The dam and bridge was finished by McComb in December, 1815. Frederick De Voe died in 1830, but just before his death he sold the remaining portion of the "Point" to Charles De Seding

He was probably the youngest brother of the immigrants Nicholas and Frederick. He stayed behind with his parents at Mannheim after his brothers had left that place in 1675. His parents preferred to remain there, perhaps hoping that a change of the Government of France would take place before their death, and then they would return and again take possession of their property and home. These hopes, however, were destroyed when the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes, in 1685, took place, which was followed by their death. Jacob remained in Manheim no longer than to settle up his parents' affairs. Soon after he was at Harlem, New York, and in 1705 he was living in the town of Westchester, a few miles from his brother Frederick's plantations.

Jacob, however, made but a short residence here, as he found the climate too cold, as did also several other Refugees who had settled in the neighborhood; so they concluded to go South, where great encouragement and kind treatment was promised to all French Refugees by the Governor of South Carolina. He left for the South in 1708. Having considerable means, he was enabled to select a large and fine tract of land in Beaufort District, S. C., where he became highly esteemed, holding positions of prominence both in the province and Church, and his generations in after years were connected with the families of Barnwells, Bullocks, Rutledges, and others.

d. age 76, Homer, NY

During the Revolutionary War, a group of Tory cowboys, led by Capt. Drake ("Black Drake"), attacked him while he was walking through the wood, broke his skull with the butt of a musket, and left him for dead. Another British foraging party discovered him and carried him to Fort Lee, where a surgeon trepanned him and thus saved his life; but he carried a rough and terrible mark on his forehead until his death. After John De Voe's discharge from Fort Lee, having fully regained his health, he joined the Continental Army, and was engaged in several battles and skirmishes. In one skirmish he was struck down by a heavy sword-cut, which rendered him senseless, then a musketeer to finish him thrust his bayonet through his body. A descendant writes: "He lay all night on the field partly in the water, the enemy supposing him to be dead, but on the following day a company of British soldiers came across him and found him yet alive. This time he was conveyed to New York City, placed in one of the prison hospitals, where he suffered for many months. He escaped, and succeeded in crossing the North River, where he reached his home without the knowledge of the numerous British sentries. Throughout his whole life he occasionally suffered severe pains from that dreadful bayonet wound.

Soon after the marriage John De Voe heard of the excellent farming land in the Genesee country (NY), where he moved and was found by a letter dated October 9, 1803, at "Broad Albin," in which he notices the death of his sister Elizabeth's husband, who died there. He afterwards moved to Homer, in Cortland County, New York

He became early engaged in business and accumulated several lots of ground on Greene, Broome, Grand, Sullivan, and Wooster Streets, which he held until they became valuable; he then sold a number to Jacob Bogert, on what was then known as Concord Street, soon after the War of 1812. Afterwards he erected several houses. The one he lived in on Greene Street was, on the 5th of October, 1824, burnt down less than one month after his death took place. His family then removed into No. 89 Sullivan Street, where on the 15th of December, 1825, they were again burnt out, the fire consuming the whole block, principally all wooden buildings.

DeVoe, Michael

Michael DeVoe

m. about 1740

Elizabeth Van Vleet

Michael became engaged with his Father in boating on the Hudson River between Albany and New York; in the course of time he became the Captain of a vessel whose chief business was to carry passengers and freight to and from the City of New York. He soon became the owner of a Sloop.

He moved to Esopus, in Ulster Co., N. Y., where one of his slaves left him, of whom he advertises as having "Run away on the 19th inst. (December, 1762), at night, from the subscriber, living at Esopus, in Ulster Co., a negro fellow named Prince, about 28 years old, about 6 feet high, and slender; has been used to the sea, and followed boating many years; he is much of the Madagascar color, and smooth skinned. Had on when he went away a Kersey coat, leather breeches, and a white linen shirt. Whoever takes up the said negro, and secures him, so that his master may have him again, shall receive ten dollars reward, and all reasonable charges paid. Michael DeVoe.

Michael soon after purchased a large farm, lying on the river near New Paltz, where he built a dock, which he used, in connection with his son Abraham, in the freight business.

When the Revolutionary War began, Michael and his son Abraham joined and signed the "Associators' Agreement," on the 10th of May, 1775, which no doubt was the cause of his being taken a prisoner at his home (New Paltz), by the British, in the month of October, when they went up the North River in their war vessels. This fact is set forth by Michael Devoe in a deposition before the War Committee, which appears to have been dated "Marble Town, Saturday night, 8th November, 1777" (Ulster Co., N. Y.), "Michael Devoe, of the precinct of New Paltz, being duly sworn, deposes and saith: That on Wednesday, the 15th of October last, a certain Captain Clark, belonging to the enemy, came to the landing belonging to the deponent and presented a firelock at him, desired him to come aboard his boat. That the Deponent then went on board the said boat because he could not help himself. That the deponent was then asked if he had heard any news about Burgoyne; to which he replied that he had, for that he had heard that Burgoyne had retreated beyond the Fish Creek, and that our people had taken some guns from him; to which some of the enemy answered it was a damned lie. The deponent was then asked if he stood for the King; he answered he did, and partly for the Country; they told him he was reported as a damned Reble and ought to be hang'd on the yard arm; but since he, the deponent, and his wife were at home they would not burn his house, otherwise they would have burnt his house and barn to ashes. That the deponent was carried up to Sahatie, and then to New York in a row galley, without stopping by the way excepting at the Cheveux du Frize, where the galley stayed for about a day and a half. That when arrived at New York the deponent was immediately put on board the Commodore man of war, of fifty guns. That on the complaint of the deponent for want of clothes, and his being an old man of sixty years of age, he was sent ashore to General Jones, who asked his name. That a woman at that time interposing with a complaint against a soldier, the deponent took the opportunity and escaped to the house of Andrew Loshe, behind the college, where he staid four days and exchanged clothes with the said Loshe while he stayed at his house. That he re-exchanged clothes with said Loshe, and on Sunday evening, the 2d instant, about 7 o'clock, he got a canoe, and about 12 o'clock the same night landed near Fort Lee, travelling through the mountains to Tappen, then took the public road and travelled to Clarkstown, where he was challenged by Continental officer, and giving them satisfaction, Major John Smith gave him a pass to Esopus. That the deponent went to King's Ferry, being the best road, and crossing the ferry he landed at Verplank's Point, where he found two officers, who desired him to go and inform Genl. Putnam that he was come from New York. Whilst the deponent was going to the General's he met an officer, who went with him to the General's quarters, and was there examined by one of the General's Aid de Camps, who gave the deponent another pass to carry him to Doctor Bard's, which is almost opposite the deponent's house, where he arrived on Wednesday night last. "The deponent further saith, that when he got down to New York there was about 100 Transport vessels and five Men of War in the North river; that by the time he left New York there lay about 70 Transports in the said river with the five ships of war, and that he saw several at the Watering place. That he heard from the aforesaid Loshe that several Transports with Soldiers had gone off, while the deponent was in Town, to the Delaware. That the deponent saw between six and seven hundred regulars on parade in New York, about the half which were Hessians. That while deponent was on board the Galley, going to New York, news was brought that General Putnam had, by one shot from Doctor Bard's land, killed a Lieut. and five privates; that another Lieut. was shot through the head at Livingston's Manor, and that Capt. Clark and six men on setting fire to Teunis Houghtaling's house, near the strand at Esopus, were terribly burned by the explosion of some gunpowder, which they said had been in the said house. The deponent saith that about a dozen of large cannon, about 18-pounders, were mounted at the Bridwell (City of New York). That he had heard that a number of the Greencoat Troops had marched to King's bridge and were making forts there, and that they were much afraid of an attack from the Yankees; and further this deponent saith not. Mikel DeVou.

After the war Capt. Michael Devoe advertised, on the 6th of December, 1784, and offered "Twenty dollars reward for a runaway negro man, named Amos." Dated at "New Paltz, Ulster County, State of New York."

Soon after this period he must have died, as the press, April 18, 1785, notices: "For sale.--The Farm formerly belonging to Captain Michael Devoe, on the North River, about six miles north of Poughkeepsie, and nine south of Esopus; exceedingly pleasantly situated, very convenient for shipbuilding. The buildings are a good stone house, two rooms on a Floor; a stone kitchen adjoining, a good Dutch Barn, two barracks, and a good Saw Mill, all on the banks of the river; a fine young bearing Orchard of about 1,000 Apple Trees. The Farm contains 800 acres of land, 200 of which are under improvement. It is a good stand for a Tavern or Trader. It is also convenient for a Ferry. The Post road leads through it from Albany to New Winsor. Apply to I. Hervey."

Nicholas de Vaux came in company with several other French refugee families, many of whom had, at an early period, fled to Manheim, in Germany. This place afterwards was invaded by Louis XIV., at which time the family of Nicholas and others escaped to England; and in 1674 they accompanied Sir Edmund Andros across the ocean when he became the second Governor of New York.

The family of Nicholas de Vaux consisted of his wife with one child and his young brother, Daniel, when he settled at Harlem. The next year (1675) Nicholas was found in the "Night Watch," at that place, having been called upon by the Governor to assist in protecting the inhabitants against an attack from the Indians; and two years after he was again enrolled by the Governor to assist in cutting 5,000 trees to erect a "Palisade Wall," on the line of the present "Wall Street" (New York), to guard against an expected attack of the Indians. This fact gave this prominent business street its name.

Nicholas had previously obtained some land at Harlem, as we find him taxed for property there in 1677. He remained there, however, but a few years, when he removed to New Jersey, where he and his wife joined the church at Bergen, in 1679. It appeared afterwards that several of his wife's relatives had moved to Hackensack, which induced him to change his residence to that place. Here they erected "The French Church," near where still remains "The Old French burying-ground," in which he and his wife were buried.

He was a cordwainer by trade. He lived in Harlem, N. Y., where he owned a considerable property, and was quite a speculator at an early period. In 1804 he advertised lots or acres for sale. Three years after he purchased land from Peter De Witt. The next year he and wife conveyed to John Adams certain land in Harlem, bounded northerly by the old road leading to Harlem, east by Joseph Mott's, southerly by the road that leads to Harlem Bridge, and westerly by the cross-road. A few years after several prominent persons of Harlem met together for the purpose of organizing a benevolent society, which became known by the name of "Friendly Society of the Town of Harlem," and was incorporated by an act passed February 10th, 1809. Among the first officers chosen appears the name of William DeVoe.

He and his family early joined the Dutch Reformed Church at Harlem. He, his wife, and part of his family were buried in the old burying-ground of this church, which lay east of the 2d Avenue, between 124th and 125th Streets. The bodies or remains were removed in 1869 to the part set off for this church in the "Woodlawn Cemetery."

William De Voe was a printer and publisher, and in 1830 was in partnership with Caspar Childs in city of New York, publishing two newspapers, called the Transcript and the Jeffersonian, for several years; but in consequence of ill-health Mr. De Voe moved to Tappan Town, where he opened a country store of various goods, which he kept for about 30 years. The locality was nearly opposite the old stone building of one story quite famous as the prison in which Major Andre was confined, and afterwards a tavern had been kept almost continually, a greater portion of the time by a Frenchman named Philip Dubay, who was the occupant and owner. In 1878 this old building was closed, very much dilapidated and neglected, and the supposition was that it was without an owner. From this old stone building Andre was taken about 500 yards on a hill in a south-westerly direction, where he was hung and his body buried. In 1822 a party of men was discovered one morning by Mr. Lawrence Mann (an old resident), then a boy, who went up to his grave and found several of them digging up the bones, which were afterwards taken to England.

William Devou, 42, merchant, and Sally Ann, 38, were listed in the 1850 Federal Census, living in Orangetown, Rockland County, NY. Listed with them were: William, 13; George, 11; Henry H., 9; July Ann, 7; Josephine, 5; Eliza, 3; and Jered, 1.
