

-- JONES --

The family groups represented in this collection may not be complete, because information was entered bit by bit as I found it or happened upon it; I have not done any systematic research on these families. Because they do not compose whole family genealogies, these listings are arranged differently from most genealogical records or histories. Each listing is a family group, and is arranged and filed alphabetically under the name of the head of the family.

Names are generally in alphabetical order (disregarding spelling variations and middle names), then in approx. chronological order. The first sorting is by surname (mixing together any and all spelling variations), then by given name, then by approximate birthdate (when known) in approximate chronological order. For easier reference, surnames in headings are grouped together under the most common spelling usage that evolved in this geographical location, regardless of individualistic spellings in the records themselves. Cross references are used in most cases where surname spellings substantially vary.

Within the quoted records, the individual spellings have been (mostly) retained because they sometimes provide clues (although in general—but with exceptions—they seem to largely reflect the record keeper's particular orthography and not always, at this early period, any special family preference). Those interested can see the variety and evolvement of a particular name's spelling and the interesting and sometimes amusing attempts at phonetic reproduction. Keep in mind that before names and spellings were standardized, records reflected the individualistic whim of the particular recorder (often two different spellings of the same name within the same document). In addition, all records were handwritten, and sometimes deciphering a handwritten name in early records can be quite challenging! So expect to search under all possibilities of spelling (for both surnames and given names).

Given names are grouped together without regard for middle initials or middle names. Because middle names and/or initials are sometimes used, sometimes not used in various records, it seemed simplest to arrange entries as if the middle names or initials did not exist. Usually all variations of a given name are grouped together as though spelled one way: Jan, Johannes, John, etc. are all grouped as one (but also look under the other forms).

Sources and references are included with each "family" grouping, but may or may not include sources that are cited (or are obvious, such as baptismal records, etc.) within the narrative or listing itself.

As with any compiled genealogical record, researchers should regard this information as leads and clues, and should verify all data with independent research.

I welcome, and would be grateful for, any additions or corrections, especially with source citations.

He was one of the most distinguished lawyers that New York has produced. In his early life for a time he followed the sea, but meeting with a serious accident on a ship, he abandoned that calling and devoted himself to the study of the law. He was called "Father of the New York Bar."

Samuel Jones was considered a patriot during the Revolution, (although Thomas Jones' History calls him a Loyalist), being a member of a committee of "One Hundred" appointed in New York, May 1, 1775, to direct the movements of the people of New York, for the protection of the citizens and to resist the attempt of Great Britain to subdue the Colony. (Refer archives in State Library, Albany, N. Y.)

He was frequently elected to the General Assembly and in 1778 was chosen a member of the Convention which adopted the Constitution of the United States, the President of which body, George Clinton, was his most intimate friend. In the same year he was concerned with Richard Varick in the revision of the Statutes of the State--a work which he chiefly executed with uncommon accuracy and dispatch.

In this same year, also, he was appointed Recorder of New York City, which office he held until succeeded by Hon. James Kent, in 1797. At the request of the then Governor John Jay he organized the office of Comptroller in 1796, and was the first one to hold that office in this State.
