

-- SERVEN --

The family groups represented in this collection may not be complete, because information was entered bit by bit as I found it or happened upon it; I have not done any systematic research on these families. Because they do not compose whole family genealogies, these listings are arranged differently from most genealogical records or histories. Each listing is a family group, and is arranged and filed alphabetically under the name of the head of the family.

Names are generally in alphabetical order (disregarding spelling variations and middle names), then in approx. chronological order. The first sorting is by surname (mixing together any and all spelling variations), then by given name, then by approximate birthdate (when known) in approximate chronological order. For easier reference, surnames in headings are grouped together under the most common spelling usage that evolved in this geographical location, regardless of individualistic spellings in the records themselves. Cross references are used in most cases where surname spellings substantially vary.

Within the quoted records, the individual spellings have been (mostly) retained because they sometimes provide clues (although in general—but with exceptions—they seem to largely reflect the record keeper's particular orthography and not always, at this early period, any special family preference). Those interested can see the variety and evolvement of a particular name's spelling and the interesting and sometimes amusing attempts at phonetic reproduction. Keep in mind that before names and spellings were standardized, records reflected the individualistic whim of the particular recorder (often two different spellings of the same name within the same document). In addition, all records were handwritten, and sometimes deciphering a handwritten name in early records can be quite challenging! So expect to search under all possibilities of spelling (for both surnames and given names).

Given names are grouped together without regard for middle initials or middle names. Because middle names and/or initials are sometimes used, sometimes not used in various records, it seemed simplest to arrange entries as if the middle names or initials did not exist. Usually all variations of a given name are grouped together as though spelled one way: Jan, Johannes, John, etc. are all grouped as one (but also look under the other forms).

Sources and references are included with each "family" grouping, but may or may not include sources that are cited (or are obvious, such as baptismal records, etc.) within the narrative or listing itself.

As with any compiled genealogical record, researchers should regard this information as leads and clues, and should verify all data with independent research.

I welcome, and would be grateful for, any additions or corrections, especially with source citations.

From The New York Times, 8 Jan 1882 -- An Old Woman Burned to Death. Nyack, N.Y., Jan. 7. -- On the road that leads from Valley Cottage to Haverstraw stands an old, partly broken down stone house that was built, doubtless, a century ago. The only occupant of this house for the last 25 years has been the owner, a woman named Leah Sarvent, about 80 years old, who was the possessor of a good farm of 100 acres, upon which the building stands. Five daughters, married, of this woman live within a few miles, and all have tried for years to persuade thrir mother to give up her lonely mode of life and come and live with them. This she has stoutly refused to do in every instance, and she continued in her solitude until Thursday last. Two lit-the great-granddaughters of the old lady were visiting at a house near by for two weeks past, and quite frequently called in to see her. On Thursday afternoon they went to make one of their customary visits, and when they reached the house they found the front door standing wide open. They entered cheerily, when they were horrified to see the body of the woman lying on the floor in front of the old-fashioned stove, the clothes burned off, and the remains in a terrible condition. The girls immediately gave the alarm, and a son-in-law of the dead woman, Jacob Polhemus, who owns the adjoining farm, came at once and made an investigation. As the door was found open and tracks were discovered leading out of the house and back again, it was thought that the woman's clothes had caught fire from the stove and she had in her fright run outside for assistance and back again into the room, where she succumbed to the flames and perished. The woman's mind had doubtless been unsound for many years, and this was the cause of her refusal to give up her solitary mode of living.²
