

-- STOUTENBURGH --

The family groups represented in this collection may not be complete, because information was entered bit by bit as I found it or happened upon it; I have not done any systematic research on these families. Because they do not compose whole family genealogies, these listings are arranged differently from most genealogical records or histories. Each listing is a family group, and is arranged and filed alphabetically under the name of the head of the family.

Names are generally in alphabetical order (disregarding spelling variations and middle names), then in approx. chronological order. The first sorting is by surname (mixing together any and all spelling variations), then by given name, then by approximate birthdate (when known) in approximate chronological order. For easier reference, surnames in headings are grouped together under the most common spelling usage that evolved in this geographical location, regardless of individualistic spellings in the records themselves. Cross references are used in most cases where surname spellings substantially vary.

Within the quoted records, the individual spellings have been (mostly) retained because they sometimes provide clues (although in general—but with exceptions—they seem to largely reflect the record keeper's particular orthography and not always, at this early period, any special family preference). Those interested can see the variety and evolution of a particular name's spelling and the interesting and sometimes amusing attempts at phonetic reproduction. Keep in mind that before names and spellings were standardized, records reflected the individualistic whim of the particular recorder (often two different spellings of the same name within the same document). In addition, all records were handwritten, and sometimes deciphering a handwritten name in early records can be quite challenging! So expect to search under all possibilities of spelling (for both surnames and given names).

Given names are grouped together without regard for middle initials or middle names. Because middle names and/or initials are sometimes used, sometimes not used in various records, it seemed simplest to arrange entries as if the middle names or initials did not exist. Usually all variations of a given name are grouped together as though spelled one way: Jan, Johannes, John, etc. are all grouped as one (but also look under the other forms).

Sources and references are included with each "family" grouping, but may or may not include sources that are cited (or are obvious, such as baptismal records, etc.) within the narrative or listing itself.

As with any compiled genealogical record, researchers should regard this information as leads and clues, and should verify all data with independent research.

I welcome, and would be grateful for, any additions or corrections, especially with source citations.

Jacobus Stoutenburgh was born in the city of New York, in the paternal homestead at what is now about the corner of Broadway and Liberty Street, which is called by his father in his Will "my Great House", surrounded by a large lot, Garden and Orchard; it was one of the most spacious, finely finished and elaborately furnished mansions of its time.

They first settled in the city of New York, where he was a successful Merchant. About 1726 they removed to Teller's Point, in the Manor of Philipse, near his wife's relatives, located in Westchester County; N. Y. He and his wife became members of the "Old Dutch Church of Sleepy Hollow" April 2, 1726. He was one of the Deacons of this Church in 1727 and again in 1731. He was elected an Elder in 1732 and 1742.

In a Deed as late as 1741, he was called a "Shopkeeper," of Philipsburgh. They moved to Hyde Park, Dutchess County in 1742, developing his real estate holdings there in the "Lower Nine Partners Patent," acquired in 1722 from his mother (inherited from Jacobus Van Rollegin). In the Dutchess County Clerk's Records, he is first mentioned in a Deed dated 1742, as "of the County of Dutchess."

Jacobus Stoutenburgh was said to have been one of the first Judges of Dutchess County.

In his will, he wrote: "...I Jacobus Stoutenburgh, of Charlotte Precinct, of Dutchess County, being in perfect health and considering the frailty of human nature, I direct all of my debts be paid." "I leave to my oldest son Tobias besides what I have already given him by deed, the sum of 25 pounds and a Silver Teapot, during his and his wife's life, and then to his daughter Margaret. I leave all the rest of my estate, real and personal, to my seven children, William, Jacobus, John, Peter, Luke, Antje and Margaret. Whereas I have given to my daughter Antje, a Silver Teapot, of the value of 14 pounds. I give to my daughter Margaret, a Silver Teapot, which is now in my family, and I order a Silver Teapot of the same value to be made for each of my sons. If either of my children should die leaving a daughter named Margaret, the Teapot is to descend to her. I leave to my sons John and Luke, a certain creek, called by the Indians, Agwasing, with the fall of water, from the boundaries of my son William's farm down to the bounds of the farm of my son Tobias, with the liberty to erect mills. And as my son Luke owns the land adjoining the creek my will is that he convey to his brother John one-half of one acre of land where it may be convenient for a mill. I leave to my wife the use of my estate during her widowhood. I make my sons William, John and Luke Exc. Dated Jan. 24, 1770. Witness John Barreck, Christian Dob, and James Livingston, Gentleman. Proved Dec. 19, 1772. (Liber 28, p. 358. D. Co. Surrogate's Office)

Lucas received from his father portion of his estate lying between the lands given to Tobias, William and Johannes and Jacobus Jr. An abstract of title says this Deed of Gift was made in 1758 and confirmed by Will. With this land also came the stone mansion "at the end of an avenue of cherry trees leading from the Post Road " at the brow of the hill.

In 1791, after Capt. Luke's death his farm was divided by Commissioners into forty-two lots and apportioned among the heirs, except the two lots on which the mansion and its environs stood, which was left undivided.

Peter Van Stoutenburgh was highly educated and of illustrious lineage on both paternal and maternal sides. He was born at Amersfoort Province of Utrecht, Holland, in 1613, when his grandfather, John Van Olden Barneveld, was at the zenith of his power as Grand Advocate of Holland, the most famous statesman in all Europe (says Motley in his "Life and Death of John of Barneveld,") "one of the noblest characters of his or any country," and of "ancient and noble family."<sup>1</sup>

Pieter's father was William Van Olden Barneveld, Lord of Stoutenburgh (in Eemland, three miles from Amersfoort) a "brilliant and talented cavalry officer, a diplomatic ambassador of Holland at the Court of France and a favorite with Henry IV, its King, who fled from Holland in 1624 after organizing a conspiracy to kill Prince Maurice of Orange in revenge for the beheading of his famous and patriotic father after a mock trial and the systematic beggaring and ruin of all his family by the treachery of Maurice. His crime, though unjustifiable, was excused by more than half of his countrymen and subsequent revelations of historical archives, translated from the Dutch and French, have largely discredited the statement of alleged "eye-witnesses" (among his enemies) that he appeared at the fall of Antwerp at the head of Spain's Black Cavalry of invasion. He drifted into France and became lost under an incognito. Whether he came thus to Nieuw Amsterdam with his son, Pieter Van Stoutenburgh, or not is uncertain but Pieter, at the age of 25, certainly came with Governor Kieft (between 1640-1642) and served the Colony with distinction until his death in 1699. His name appears often in the Dutch records here, notably in Dominie Selyn's Diary of 1686<sup>1</sup>.

Pieter's mother was the "Saintly Walburg de Marnix, daughter of Philip de Marnix, Lord of St. Aldegonde of Zoubourg (b. 1538; d. 1598 at Leyden) near Flushing, Zeeland," one of the greatest men of the Netherlands whom Motley describes at great length in his "History of the United Netherlands."<sup>1</sup>

Aefjie van Tienhoven was a sister of the celebrated Cornelius van Tienhoven, "Schout," "Great Burgher," "Secretary of the Colony," "Receiver General" and "Attorney General" in 1652, under Gov. William Kieft, and probably the most restless, active, talented, and politically important man of the early days of New Amsterdam. He was one of the two largest land owners on Manhattan and together with Jan Jansen Damen owned the entire width of the city from East to Hudson's River from about Maiden Lane to Chambers Street.<sup>1</sup>

Pieter Stoutenburgh was granted a Patent by Governor Stuyvesant to lands in Manhattan April 7, 1664, and confirmed by Gov. Richard Nichols also on Sept. 23, 1667. See "Patents 1667-1671, Vol. II, p. 106," in office of the Secretary of State, Albany, and on p. 110 is Van Tienhoven's patent also.<sup>1</sup>

He was a schoolmaster and had, as early as 1656, a house and large garden on the east side of Broadway, just north of Wall Street, as shown on old early maps. He was appointed schepen on 16 Aug 1673 of New Orange (New York), and was Treasurer of the City in 1676.<sup>1</sup>

Tobias received from his father a farm in Hyde Park, NY, lying on the river front in the Ninth Water Lot, with the Stone House near the "Upper or New Landing." It was occupied at the beginning of the 18th century by his son-in-law Richard De Cantillon, who carried on here a large mercantile and shipping business; sending cargoes as far as the West Indies, to be exchanged for molasses, sugar and rum.

Tobias Stoutenburgh, was Capt. in the "Regiment of Militia in ye Counties of Ulster and Dutchess, province of New York," in 1762 and 1763. He was Supervisor of Crum Elbow Precinct in 1764, 1765, 1766 and 1767.

When a lad of 4 years he removed from New York City with his parents to Teller's Point in the vicinity of Tarrytown, N. Y. and about 1742 came with them to Hyde Park, Dutchess County, N. Y., where his father proceeded to develop his extensive holdings. His father owned nearly all of the ninth water lot, and controlled both sides of the Crum Elbow Creek as far as the milling rights were concerned. As his children came to maturity he settled them each upon a farm, always seeing to it that they had water power for a mill. William received one of these homestead farms of large extent, lying on both sides of the Creek Road and taking in the whole width of the Ninth Water Lot.

His father seems to have been a Merchant in both New York and Tarrytown, and it is evident that William visited the former place on business for his father and there met the one who became his wife, whom he brought to Hyde Park, N. Y. Assisted undoubtedly by his father, he built a large (for this time) stone house on the farm received from his father, which is still (1924) standing in a good state of preservation, situated a short distance south of Union Corners, (East Park). This house was built 1750, the date being carved in fancy figures on a stone just south of the front door; in 1765 some additional improvements were made and this date is carved just north of the same door. This homestead was by William bequeathed to his son Isaac, who was a prominent man of his day in the affairs of the Town and Church, who upon his death liberated his slaves.

William Stoutenburgh, after settling in his new home at Union Corners, Hyde Park, N. Y. seems to have devoted himself to improving his property, clearing the land for cultivation and developing his milling sites. He also built a Saw and Grist Mill on the Fallkill Creek about one mile east from his home.

William Stoutenburgh, his sons and brothers served in the Revolutionary War. Unfortunately the record of enlisted privates of the 4th Dutchess County Regiment are lost and to date no trace of them has been found, but in a copy of the published record of the Military Archives of New York State, Vol. 1, in the "Land Bounty Rights" of the 4th Regiment of Dutchess County Militia, as one of the enlisted men, William Stoutenburgh his sons, William Stoutenburgh Jr., and James (Jacobus), his brothers, Tobias, Jacobus, John (Johannes), Capt. Pieter, and Capt. Luke and his nephew, James (Jacobus). In this same regiment his brother Tobias Stoutenburgh was commissioned Colonel on Oct. 17, 1775, with Benj. De La Vergne commissioned 2nd Major, on the same date; his brother Luke Stoutenburgh, and his neighbor Isaac Conklin were each commissioned a Captain, on May 28, 1778 in this same regiment. Luke was previously a Captain in Freer's Regiment New York Militia 1777-1778. His brother Isaac was Lieut. Colonel of Malcolms Continental Regiment in 1776, and his brother Pieter was Capt. in Grahams Regiment N. Y. Militia 1776.
