

-- TOTTEN --

The family groups represented in this collection may not be complete, because information was entered bit by bit as I found it or happened upon it; I have not done any systematic research on these families. Because they do not compose whole family genealogies, these listings are arranged differently from most genealogical records or histories. Each listing is a family group, and is arranged and filed alphabetically under the name of the head of the family.

Names are generally in alphabetical order (disregarding spelling variations and middle names), then in approx. chronological order. The first sorting is by surname (mixing together any and all spelling variations), then by given name, then by approximate birthdate (when known) in approximate chronological order. For easier reference, surnames in headings are grouped together under the most common spelling usage that evolved in this geographical location, regardless of individualistic spellings in the records themselves. Cross references are used in most cases where surname spellings substantially vary.

Within the quoted records, the individual spellings have been (mostly) retained because they sometimes provide clues (although in general—but with exceptions—they seem to largely reflect the record keeper's particular orthography and not always, at this early period, any special family preference). Those interested can see the variety and evolvement of a particular name's spelling and the interesting and sometimes amusing attempts at phonetic reproduction. Keep in mind that before names and spellings were standardized, records reflected the individualistic whim of the particular recorder (often two different spellings of the same name within the same document). In addition, all records were handwritten, and sometimes deciphering a handwritten name in early records can be quite challenging! So expect to search under all possibilities of spelling (for both surnames and given names).

Given names are grouped together without regard for middle initials or middle names. Because middle names and/or initials are sometimes used, sometimes not used in various records, it seemed simplest to arrange entries as if the middle names or initials did not exist. Usually all variations of a given name are grouped together as though spelled one way: Jan, Johannes, John, etc. are all grouped as one (but also look under the other forms).

Sources and references are included with each "family" grouping, but may or may not include sources that are cited (or are obvious, such as baptismal records, etc.) within the narrative or listing itself.

As with any compiled genealogical record, researchers should regard this information as leads and clues, and should verify all data with independent research.

I welcome, and would be grateful for, any additions or corrections, especially with source citations.

d. 22 April 1864 Washington, D.C.

d. about 1862

His mother died when he was quite young, and Joseph Gilbert Totten was left in the care of his maternal uncle, Jared Mansfield, a graduate of Yale College, and a learned mathematician, who in 1802 was appointed Capt. of Engineers and teacher in the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

Joseph G. Totten graduated from West Point Academy in 1805 and was in the Army Corps of Engineers 1812-13.

His sister, Sarah M. Totten, of the Island of St. Croix, m. about May 1829 Newport, RI, Lieut. F. N. Barbarin, of the U.S. Army.²

From: The Twentieth Century Biographical Dictionary of Notable Americans: Volume X, p. 176 -- TOTTEN, Joseph Gilbert, soldier, was born in New Haven, Conn., Aug. 23, 1788; son of Peter G. and Grace (Mansfield) Totten, and grandson of Joseph Totten. His mother died when he was quite young and he was brought up by his uncle, Jared Mansfield (q.v.). He was graduated from the U.S. Military academy, July 1, 1805; was commissioned 2d lieutenant, corps of engineers, but resigned March 31, 1806; was reappointed in the army in 1808, and supervised the building of Fort Clinton at Castle Garden, N.Y. He was promoted 1st lieutenant, July 23, 1810, and captain in the corps of engineers, July 31, 1812 and served as chief-engineer of the army in 1812 and 1813, on the Niagara frontier, and on the Lake Champlain line of operations, 1813-14. He was brevetted major, June 6, 1813, for meritorious services, and lieutenant-colonel for gallant conduct at the battle of Plattsburg, Sept. 11, 1814; participated in many engagements, and when, on Oct. 5, 1814, Fort Erie was abandoned, General Izard entrusted him with the blowing up of the fort. He superintended the fortification of upper New York; was promoted major of engineers, Nov. 12, 1818; brevetted lieutenant-colonel, corps of engineers, Sept. 11, 1824; served on various beards of ordnance, artillery, etc., and in constructing defences and improving harbors. He was promoted lieutenant-colonel, May 24, 1828; colonel and chief engineer, U.S.A., Dec. 7, 1838, serving in the latter capacity at the siege of Vera Cruz, and was brevetted brigadier-general, U.S.A., March 29, 1847. He served on the lighthouse board, 1851-58, and on coast fortification, 1859-61; commanded the corps of engineers, and was at the head of the engineer bureau at Washington, D.C., 1861-64, having special charge of the celebrated Minot's light, near Cohasset, Mass., built during this time. He also served on various temporary boards. In addition to his military offices, he was a regent of the Smithsonian Institution from its establishment in 1846 until his death; harbor commissioner for New York and Boston, 1860-64; a corporator of the American Academy of Sciences, 1863-64, and a member of [p.176] several scientific societies. He received the degree of A.M. from Brown in 1829. He translated Treussart's "Essays on Hydraulic and Common Mortars" (1842), and published a Report on National Defences (1851), and a Report on Firing with Heavy Ordnance (1857). At the time of his death, the secretary of war issued a general order, reviewing his life and praising his good qualities, and ordering the officers of the corps of engineers and the officers and cadets of the U.S. Military academy to wear the badge of mourning for thirty days, the firing of half-hour guns at the Military academy and the displaying of the flag at half-mast. He died in Washington, D.C., April 22, 1864.

In the name of God, Amen. April 10, 1766. I, Peter Totten, of Rye, in King Street, in Westchester County, farmer, being in good health. I do first and foremost order all my just debts to be paid, and funeral charges, and charges of settling my estate, to be paid by my executors. All the rest of my personal estate I leave to my son Daniel and my daughters, Jean Dusenbury, Phebe, wife of Richard Barnes, Mary, wife of John Pell, Jr., and to all the children of my deceased daughter, Martha, wife of Caleb Husted. My executors are to sell all my personal estate at publick vendue, any pay debts and legacies. After my wife's decease, my executors are to sell all my real estate, and pay to my eldest son, Peter Totten, 5 shillings. To the children of my deceased son, Gilbert Totten, 300 [pounds], and 60 [pounds] which my son Gilbert paid for the use of my son Daniel. I leave to my son Joseph, 200 [pounds]. To my son Daniel, 140 [pounds]. The rest to all my children, then living, and the children of those who are dead. "And whereas before the date of this will I have given two deeds of gift to my sons, Gilbert and Joseph, for all my lands which I possessed at the time, which I should not have done, of my own free will, but was over persuaded to give the said deeds, which ever since has much troubled my mind, by reason it did not do equal justice between my children. And I do hereby, as much as in me lies, disallow and revoke the said two deeds of gift, and I desire that no Court of Law or equity shall allow them." I make my sons, Peter, Joseph, and Daniel, executors. Witnesses, Jonathan Miller, James Brundige, Caleb Fowler. Proved, May 29, 1770
