

-- VAN WINKLE --

The family groups represented in this collection may not be complete, because information was entered bit by bit as I found it or happened upon it; I have not done any systematic research on these families. Because they do not compose whole family genealogies, these listings are arranged differently from most genealogical records or histories. Each listing is a family group, and is arranged and filed alphabetically under the name of the head of the family.

Names are generally in alphabetical order (disregarding spelling variations and middle names), then in approx. chronological order. The first sorting is by surname (mixing together any and all spelling variations), then by given name, then by approximate birthdate (when known) in approximate chronological order. For easier reference, surnames in headings are grouped together under the most common spelling usage that evolved in this geographical location, regardless of individualistic spellings in the records themselves. Cross references are used in most cases where surname spellings substantially vary.

Within the quoted records, the individual spellings have been (mostly) retained because they sometimes provide clues (although in general—but with exceptions—they seem to largely reflect the record keeper's particular orthography and not always, at this early period, any special family preference). Those interested can see the variety and evolvement of a particular name's spelling and the interesting and sometimes amusing attempts at phonetic reproduction. Keep in mind that before names and spellings were standardized, records reflected the individualistic whim of the particular recorder (often two different spellings of the same name within the same document). In addition, all records were handwritten, and sometimes deciphering a handwritten name in early records can be quite challenging! So expect to search under all possibilities of spelling (for both surnames and given names).

Given names are grouped together without regard for middle initials or middle names. Because middle names and/or initials are sometimes used, sometimes not used in various records, it seemed simplest to arrange entries as if the middle names or initials did not exist. Usually all variations of a given name are grouped together as though spelled one way: Jan, Johannes, John, etc. are all grouped as one (but also look under the other forms).

Sources and references are included with each "family" grouping, but may or may not include sources that are cited (or are obvious, such as baptismal records, etc.) within the narrative or listing itself.

As with any compiled genealogical record, researchers should regard this information as leads and clues, and should verify all data with independent research.

I welcome, and would be grateful for, any additions or corrections, especially with source citations.

Van Winkle

According to Winfield, the name is derived from winkel, a corner, square, shop. Winkelier was a shopkeeper; the ancestor was a shop or store keeper. The family came from Middleburgh, the capital of Zeeland, one of the United Provinces. The ancestor was probably named Jacob, and his children were Jacob, Waling, Symon, Annetje, and Grietje.

Genealogical Material on the Van Winkle Family includes:

Van Winkle, Daniel, A genealogy of the Van Winkle family : account of its origin and settlement in this country with data, 1630-1913, 1913

JACOB WALIGH, WALINGS, WALINGEN or WALINGSEN and his brother Symon were among the very first farmers to permanently locate in New Netherland. Symon's untimely death cut short this branch of the Walicks family, who were residents of the Village of Winkel in North Holland, located about fifteen miles northwest of Hoorn, as far back as the beginning of the fourteenth century. Jacob, the progenitor of the Van Winkle family in New Netherland, was the occupant of one of the six Company-Bouweries on Manhattan Island started by the Dutch West India Company in 1624 and continued by the Company in May, 1630, under new management. An inventory of Jacob's possessions on July 2, 1631, indicates that he had on his farm six saddle horses, two stallions, six cows, two bulls and twenty-two sheep, and that he was successful with his breeding of cattle. He made a trip to Holland for the purpose of further stocking his farm, in 1633, in the ship De Soutbergh on its return trip, after bringing the new Governor, Wouter Van Twiller, to New Netherland in April, 1633. While at Hoorn he united with the Dutch Church by certificate on December 8, 1633. His stay in Hoorn was short, for in the fall of the next year Jacob Walingsen returned to New Netherland on De Coninck David (King David) captained by David de Vries, arriving at New Amsterdam in June, 1635, a little over a year prior to the expiration of his lease of the Company's-Bonwerie No. 5.3 During his absence the bouwerie was managed by Claes Cornelisz Swits. After the expiration of his lease, Jacob Walingsen entered into a contract with Patroon Kiliaen Van Rensselaer, August 15, 1636, and settled on a farm at Rensselaerswyck. On October 1, 1650, he returned to Manhattan, although offered the choice of several farms if he would remain in the colony. August 29, 1641, Jacob Walingsen was appointed a member of the Board, "The Twelve Men," the first representative official body within the limits of New York and New Jersey. This Board was advisory to Governor Kieft and represented the inhabitants of Manhattan, Brooklyn and Pavonia in the consideration of the general treatment of the Indians. Prior to 1635, Jacob Walingsen led a movement to establish a settlement on the Connecticut River, but, because of the lack of support of his contemporaries and failure to obtain permission of the West India Company, owing to fear of Indian attack, the project was abandoned. October 23, 1654, he secured a grant of land at Pavonia, now Jersey City, New Jersey, where the family has been continuously represented for eleven generations. Jacob Walingsen died in the early part of the year 1657, leaving a widow, Trintje Jacobs, and six minor children, three girls and three boys. Michael Jansen Vreeland Vreeland and Burgomaster Van der Grift were appointed guardians of the children. The Van Winkle line from the first progenitor in New Netherland to the Recording Secretary of The Holland Society is as follows: Jacob Walingsen Van Winkle, one of the Board of Twelve Men, member of the General Court in 1640, and Trintje Jacobs; Jacob Jacobse Van Winkle and Grietje Hendrickse Hellingh; Hendrick Van Winkle and Catrina Waldron; Jacob Van Winkle, first Lieutenant in Captain Nicausa Terhune's Company of Militia in the Precinct of New Barbadoes, 1775-1778, deacon of the First Dutch Church in New Jersey chartered by the Crown and incorporated under the name of The Ministry Elders and Deacons, December 20, 1771, and Rachel Cammega; Daniel Van Winkle and Antje Winne, Jacob D. Van Winkle and Antje Vreeland; Jacob Van Winkle, who served in the War of 1812, and Maria Sip, daughter of Colonel Garret Sip; Edward Van Winkle, who served in the Civil War-Company G-37th Regiment of New York, and Mary Jane Wandle; Edward Van Winkle, Recording Secretary of The Holland Society of New York, and Sama Le Roy Batdorf.

— Posted online January 1998 by Myra E. Vreeland Lane <103412.3450@compuserve.com>, citing Records of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church of Bergen in New Jersey 1666-1788 edited and translated by Dingman Versteeg and Thomas E. Vermilye, Jr. With contributions by Nicholas G. Vreeland, et al. Baltimore: Genealogical Publishing Co., Inc. 1976.

The progenitor of the Van Winkle families in the vicinity of Paterson was called Jacob Waling, in accordance with the Dutch system of nomenclature in the seventeenth century. He was undoubtedly the son of a man whose Christian name was Jacob. The common ancestor of the family settled at Bergen, while Symon Waling, who is presumed to be his brother, located at Rensselaerswyck, New York, under the direction of the patroon of that colony. While resident of Holland, Jacob became identified with the seaport Hoorn, on the Zuyder Zee, while Simon made a home at Bilt, a little village near Utrecht, consequently they became known as Jacob Van Hoorn and Simon Van de Bilt. When coming to America in 1636, they undoubtedly migrated from Winkel, a small village in the northern part of North Holland. In later years, desiring to be identified with their ancestral home, their descendants took the name or were called Van Winkle.

Jacob Waling Van Winkle, not mentioned in records until Jan. 12, 1639, appears to have made an unsuccessful attempt to locate a colony at the Fresh river (the Connecticut) and was admitted to the rights of a small burgher of New Amsterdam, April 17, 1657. His death must have occurred soon after this, as his widow, Tryntje Jacobs, married, Aug. 17, 1657, Jacob Stodelsen. Of the sons of Jacob Waling and Tryntje Jacobs, namely Jacob, Waling Jacobse, and Symon Waling, the two youngest became identified with Acquackanonk. Jacob was baptized Oct. 16, 1650, and married (first) Aeltje Daniels, a widow; his second wife was Grietje Hendricks Hollinge. Waling Jacobse was born about 1651, and married Catharina Michielse (Vreeland) March 15, 1671. Soon after the commencement of the eighteenth century he located on the east bank of the Passaic, opposite and below the draw-bridge, where he had an extensive farm embracing much of the present Rutherford, which he bought as early as 1682. It must be remembered at this time that the bounds of Acquackanonk were sometimes construed to extend across the river into the present Bergen county. His brother Symon was baptized Aug. 24, 1653, and married Annetje Sip, Dec. 155, 1675. He was an elder in the Acquackanonk church in 1709, and by recorded deeds he was allotted two tracts of land near the Passaic bridge, which constituted his homestead. His name was signed Symon Van Winkel to his will, which was proven Feb. 24, 1732, which indicates approximately the time of his death.

In the third generation of the sons of Waling Jacobse and Catharina Michielse, Jacob married Geertruyt Brickers, of Albany, New York, Oct. 30, 1697, and was elected deacon in the Acquackanonk church in 1723 and 1732, and elder in 1737 and 1743. The three sons divided the tract of five hundred acres of land on the east side of the Passaic river by mutual releases. Of the male issue of Symon Jacobse and Annetje Sip: Jacob, born Aug. 9, 1678, was a member of the Acquackanonk church in 1726, and married (first) Jacomyntje Mattheuse Van Nieuwerkerck, April 21, 1701; his second wife was Catharina Bekling, maiden, of Acquackanonk. His homestead was at Wesel. Johannis, born Aug. 18, 1682, married (first) Oct. 14, 1704, Antje Sanders, and (second) Magdalena Spier. He removed from Acquackanonk about 1720 to the new settlement of Springfield, west of Elizabethtown, being the first Dutchman to settle among the New Englanders in that region. Simeon, baptized Aug. 6, 1686, married (first) Prientje Van Giesen, and (second) a widow, Antje Pietersen. His house, one story high, one hundred and three feet long, was situated on the west bank of the Passaic river, in the Bogt or Paterson sub-division, at the foot of a hill, where there was a ford across the river. This house was of stone, whitewashed on the outside, and became known far and wide as De Witte Huis — the White House. There was a "driftway" between Simeon's land on the south and his neighbor Jan Van Blarcom's property, which in 1719 was formally laid out as a highway which was the east end of Willis street. In the survey then made, the "Pompton road" referred to is the present Vreeland avenue. Simeon having a fine spring near his house, established a tannery and currying shop, which he carried on for many years. He was the father of twenty children, thirteen by his first wife and seven by his second wife, of whom seven died young. The White House stood as a well known landmark until about 1828, when it was torn down by Henry Doremus. The material being used in the building of a new house on the other side of the river. Marinus, another son, married Geesje Hendrickse Van Wageninge, but left no male issue. By his first marriage, Simeon Symon Jacobse (Simeon of the White House) had four sons, of whom only Jacob, who married Froukje Sophronia Gerritsen, Dec. 8, 1749, became identified with the territory around Paterson. Soon after his marriage he bought in the Paterson sub-division, a lot lying on the north side of Broadway, and lived in an old stone house that afterwards became known as the Passaic Hotel. Like his father, he was a tanner, and established himself in that business in a favorable swamp through which flowed the Dublin spring brook, the vats being situated in the middle of what is now Main street, near Fair street. In excavating for a sewer on Main street about 1869-70, some of the frame work of one of the ancient vats was brought to the surface. His son Johannis by his second marriage, took as a wife Jane, a sister of Michael Slingerland, and by his will dated March 27, 1778, he described himself as "a farmer of Bergen." He bequeathed to his wife all his moveable estate excepting four negro wenches Quack, Pol, Nance and Prince; also one large Dutch Bible. She was to have the use of all his lands and effects during her widowhood. The testator seems to have had no children.

Cornelius, son of Waling and grandson of Johannis Jacobsen was baptized Nov., 1747. He married Annaetje Van Ryhen, and removed to Paterson about 1773. He lived in an old stone house on River street a short distance west of West street. He owned six acres of land from the river southerly to Broadway, also a grist and saw mill at the foot of Mulberry street, which he operated for twenty years or more. He also kept a country store in a red frame building on the north side of the road next to the mill. He was familiarly known as "Walling's Case."

Also in the fifth generation of the Van Winkle family, Simeon, son of Johannis, born Dec. 12, 1749, married Claesje, daughter of Cornelis Gerritse. He was called "Simeon of the Bogt," to distinguish him from Simeon of Broadway. He lived in a stone house at Riverside that was destroyed by fire about 1880. His brother Frans married Isabel Archibald, an Irish girl, which caused great astonishment and disfavor among the Dutch young ladies. He built a saw mill in Deep brook; afterwards the Van Blarcom mill was on the same site. Frans was a pewholder in the Totowa church and must have been a soldier, as he bequeaths to his son David holster pistols and a sword.

Simeon, the son of Simeon the tanner, was born April 4, 1752, and married Antje, daughter of Edo Merselis. He was a man of many parts, and continued his father's business as tanner and Currier, moving the tannery a little further up Main street and extending it across to what afterwards became West street. His homestead, a stone house in the northeast corner of Main street and Broadway, was a one-story dwelling with a large open attic, and a high pitched roof. In addition to the tannery and currying business he ran a distillery located between the house and the tannery. After the founding of Paterson he opened a store in a frame building north of his house. He was also a harness maker and was engaged in farming. His brother Pieter, baptized Dec. 25, 1754, was known as Grootkop Pietem or Big-Headed Peter, and was an object of curiosity to visitors to the neighborhood. He was born with an extraordinary sized head. At the age of twenty-seven years his face from the upper part of his forehead to the end of his chin measured twenty inches, and around the upper part of his head was twenty-one inches. On account of the monstrous size of his head he was unable to support it unaided, as his body was only twenty-seven inches in height and his limbs small and deformed. He was unable to move about, and a chair was fashioned especially to relieve him as much as possible from the great weight. A colored slave was also assigned to wait on him constantly. His deformity attracted the more attention as he was a man of good faculties, intelligent, and able to take part in any discussion on the affairs of the day. He was visited by many prominent persons, among whom were Generals Washington and Lafayette. He lived more than thirty-one years. Jacob, another of Simeon's brothers, married Catelynje Neeffe. He lived on the north side of Broadway, near the west side of Summer street. He died in 1790; his widow occupied the house until her death, between 1830 and 1836. In June, 1850, the house was struck by lightning and partially destroyed.

Johannes, son of Simeon, of the sixth generation of the family, better known as Judge John S. Van Winkle, was born Nov. 12, 1784, and married Jannetje Kip, daughter of Peter Kip and Willemyntje Van Winkel, of Boiling Spring. He resided in his grandfather's place at the Goffle, replacing the old house in 1811 by a large stone dwelling on the north. side of the Godwinville road, a mile or two from Paterson. He also carried on a grist mill near his house, and was long a judge of the Common Pleas Court, a man of prudence and wealth. Early on Wednesday, Jan. 9, 1850, his residence was the scene of a dreadful tragedy — a double murder, the first that had occurred during the thirteen years of the existence of Passaic county. The murderer, John Johnson, who had been an employee of the judge, was arrested. The county courts convened, Tuesday, March 5, 1850; Johnson was indicted the following Saturday, tried on Monday, and convicted after twenty minutes conference by the jury. His execution took place April 30, 1850, in the jail yard, in full view of thousands who gathered on Gerret Mountain and on hilltops to witness the gruesome spectacle.

All of the children of Simeon Van Winkle and Antje Merselis were born in the homestead on the corner of Main street and Broadway. Jacob, the eldest son, born Dec. 6, 1776, removed to New York. Peter, the next son, born June 27, 1782, married Phebe, eldest daughter of General Godwin; he engaged in mercantile business in New York City before 1805, where he died in 1820 or 1822, his family returning to Paterson. Cornelius, another son, born Jan. 13, 1785, became a printer noted for the excellence of his work in New York City. He published the "Printer's Guide" in 1818, and a year later the first American edition of Washington Irving's "Sketch Book." Johannes, still another son baptized Oct. 14, 1787, likewise removed to New York City. He always dressed in the quaint style of the Colonial days.

The seventh generation of the Van Winkle family was represented by Helmich Van Winkle, born Feb. 16, 1806, who married Catharine, a daughter of Donald McIntyre of New York. He was an alderman from the east ward of Paterson in 1864-68, also deputy tax receiver for about ten years before his death, which occurred Feb. 15, 1885. He was as early as 1833 engaged in the grocery business on Van Houten street, afterwards on the southwest corner of Main and Ellison streets. He lived for many years on the northwest corner of Church and Van Houten streets. Cornelius, born Sept. 9, 1806, married Catharine Leah Van Dien, of Paramus. He owned the Riverside farm, where he lived, which he sold to the Riverside Land Improvement Company; after this resided on the southwest corner of Ellison and Hamilton streets. He was a zealous and generous supporter of the First Reformed Church. David Van Winkle married Bridget Decker, of Macopin, and died at the advanced age of eighty-five. John E. Van Winkle, born Feb. 25, 1814, married Rebecca, daughter of John G. and Aletta (Van Voorhis) Olds, of Paramus, June 19, 1838. He died in 1889, and his wife the following year. He was a machinist and inventor, and lived in the house occupied by his father on the northwest corner of Broadway and Carroll street.

Jacob Walings Van Winkle was the ancestor of the Van Winkle family in America. He was among the first settlers of New Amsterdam, about 1624. He returned to Holland in 1633; and again about 1641, where he married abt. 1642 Tryntje Jacobs, and where the first two or three of his children were born. He was associated at this time with the seaport of Hoorn, and he was sometimes known as Jacob Van Hoorn. He returned to America with his family about 1648 and settled at Rensselaerswyck. On 23 Oct 1654 he was given a grant of land at Pavonia.

Jacob Waligh, Walings, Walingen or Walingsen and his brother Symon were among the very first farmers to permanently locate in New Netherland. Symon's untimely death (Symon Wallingsen was murdered by an Indian at Paulis Hook, in Pavonia, in the spring of 1649) cut short this branch of the Walicks family, who were residents of the Village of Winkel in North Holland, located about fifteen miles northwest of Hoorn, as far back as the beginning of the fourteenth century.

Jacob, the progenitor of the Van Winkle family in New Netherland, was the occupant of one of the six Company-Bouweries on Manhattan Island started by the Dutch West India Company in 1624 (document giving the inventory of the Company's farms on July 2, 1631, showing increase since May, 1630, drawn up by Kiliaen Van Rensselaer, was recently discovered by L. P. de Boer, Historian, among the documents in the Archives at the Hague.) and continued by the Company in May, 1630, under new management. An inventory of Jacob's possessions on July 2, 1631, indicates that he had on his farm six saddle horses, two stallions, six cows, two bulls and twenty-two sheep, and that he was successful with his breeding of cattle. He made a trip to Holland for the purpose of further stocking his farm, in 1633, in the ship De Soutbergh on its return trip, after bringing the new Governor, Wouter Van Twiller, to New Netherland in April, 1633. While at Hoorn he united with the Dutch Church by certificate on December 18, 1633. (In the records of the Dutch Church at Hoorn appears the following entry, under that date: "Have come over with certificate from other Churches to our congregation--Jacob Walingen of New Netherland.") His stay in Hoorn was short, for in the fall of the next year Jacob Walingsen returned to New Netherland on De Coninck David (King David) captained by David de Vries, arriving at New Amsterdam in June, 1635, a little over a year prior to the expiration of his lease of the Company's-Bouwerie No. 5. (For a description of the bouwerie No. 5, see "Valentine's Manual" for 1860, pages 557, 558.) During his absence the bouwerie was managed by Claes Cornelisz (whose murder in 1641 was the chief cause of the first recorded Indian War. Holland Society Year Book 1914, page 11. Swits.) After the expiration of his lease, Jacob Walingsen entered into a contract with Patroon Kiliaen Van Rensselaer, August 15, 1636, and settled on a farm at Rensselaerswyck. On October 1, 1650, he returned to Manhattan, although offered the choice of several farms if he would remain in the colony.

On August 29, 1641, Jacob Walingsen was appointed a member of the Board, "The Twelve Men," the first representative official body within the limits of New York and New Jersey. This Board was advisory to Governor Kieft and represented the inhabitants of Manhattan, Brooklyn and Pavonia in the consideration of the general treatment of the Indians.

Prior to 1635, Jacob Walingsen led a movement to establish a settlement on the Connecticut River (See Holland Society YYear Book 1914, page 25.) but, because of the lack of support of his contemporaries and failure to obtain permission of the West India Company, owing to fear of Indian attack, the project was abandoned. October 23, 1654, he secured a grant of land at Pavonia, now Jersey City, New Jersey, where the family has been continuously represented for eleven generations.

Jacob Walingsen died in the early part of the year 1657, leaving a widow, Trintje Jacobs, and six minor children, three girls and three boys. Michael Jansen Vreeland and Burgomaster Van der Grift (Burgomaster Van der Grift of Nieuw Amsterdam) were appointed guardians of the children.

His children used the patronymic Jacobse.

In the (2) marriage record they were: "Jacob Jacobsen Van Winkel (wid. of Aaltje Daniels) and Grietje Hendrickx Hellingh, Y.D., both living at Bergen."

In 1714 Jacob & Margaret van Winkle, of Bergen, conveyed to Able Ridonzase...line of Elizabeth Patterson. Signed Jacob van Winkle (his mark), Margaret van Winkle (her mark. Witnessed by Edmund Kingsland and George Ryerson.¹

In his will, dated 30 Sep 1708 Bergen Co., NJ, Jacob Jacobsen Van Winckel, Sr., yeoman; mentioned second wife, Margaretha, executrix and whole estate during life. In case of her death, my eldest son (by Margaretha), Henry, to be executor. Minorene children to be brought up and educated before division of estate, "which by agreement I am bound to do." The 3/4 of whole estate to be delivered equally to my four (?) children (begotten of my said wife, Margaretha), viz., Henry, Catherine and Samuel. The children of my first wife, Aeltie VanWinckel, viz., Jacob (5 sh. for his birthright), Margaretha, Daniel, John and Simon, to have 1/4 part of whole estate. All that tract of land, which I enjoy by conveyance of Henry Teunisen Helling, with the lot I live upon, paying equal portions of the same to their sisters, I will to my sons, begotten of my wife Margaretha, with all the moveable estate for £75, 1/2 of said sum to the children of first wife, 1/2 to children of second wife. Witnesses--Henry Epken Banta, Abraham Ackerman, John Conrad Codweiss, Matthys Demoot, Elaes Gerbran. 1709, Sept. 19. Codicil. Daughter, Cathrine VanWinckel, bed with furnishings. Witnesses--Ulderick Brouwer, Cornelis Gerbrantsen, John Conrad Codweis. Proved 16 Oct., 1732. 1732, Oct. 16. Hendrick VanWinckel qualifies. Fellow bondsman--Jacob Hendrickse Banta. Witnesses--Roelof Westervelt, Benjamin Westervelt.
